Carmel Lions Club Eye Foundation Has Share in Jong Sook Kim's Triumph

With national attention focused upon the little Korean girl, Jong Sook Kim, who through the efforts of the former Stanford student, Dr. Bill McColl, was brought, nearly sightless, from her homeland to Presbyterian Medical Center Eye Foundation, San Francisco, the miraculous operation performed by Dr. Gilbert Cleasby — the Jong Sook Kim of today with her shining seeing eyes, has been headline news in the metropolitan newspapers across the world.

In an exclusive interview, Dr. James E. Gilman of Carmel told of the Carmel Lions Club's interest and contribution to the program that made the scientific miracle possible.

Dr. Gilman is chairman of the Carmel Lions Club Sight Conservation Committee and treasurer of the Lions Eye Foundation.

It was in 1955, the Lions Host Club of San Francisco authorized the transfer of $1,000 of welfare funds to an independent corporation to be known as the Eye Research Foundation, Inc. From the start, the idea of a Foundation sponsored by Lions Clubs of the district (northern California and Nevada) won unbounded enthusiasm. In 1960, in state convention, the original Eye Research Foundation ceased to exist and the Lions Eye Foundation for Children, supported by Lions Clubs and served by the state's renowned specialists in the San Francisco Center, came into being.

Since that date children from all parts of the state have been helped, in examinations, in the purchases of glasses and in surgical treatment.

"The ultimate aim," stated Dr. Gilman, "is a Lions Eye Hospital for Children. In the meantime, we are not idle."

There is a Carmel Lions Club Eye Bank, right here. Through ophthalmologists as well as private individuals we have received many bequests of eyes for transplant."

Dr. Gilman showed the Pine Cone reporter the tiny plastic container in which the eye must be transferred, under refrigeration and highly sterile conditions, to the San Francisco Center.

"It is a deplorable fact that so few people understand the conditions surrounding the donation of eyes that will give a new world to a living being.

"Only the cornea (the outer coat) of the eye is used in the transfer, and the balance of the eye is used for research. Color of the eye makes no difference; nor does the age matter; nor the fact that the deceased donor might have worn glasses in life. The bequeathed eyes are removed by surgeons as a voluntary service, in both our Community and Monterey Hospitals, as shortly after death as possible. I would like to stress that any pair of eyes, unless they have been irreparably damaged, will give sight to a living person of any age. What greater bequest can any one of us make?"

"We, of the Carmel Lions Club, are proud and grateful that we have had a part, however small, in Jong Sook Kim's recovery. We feel that we have contributed not only to a worthy young individual, but to the betterment of world relations, in a world so in need of closer understanding."

He Otter Know a Lady When He Sees One . . .

By Carolyn Elstob

... by her manners, of course, on the beach and in the bath-tub. She preens herself, she cuddles, she cries when she's lonesome.

Like Mr. Peabody's Mermaid of motion picture fame, Bessie Lou (named by no less authority than Verne Yadon, curator of the Pacific Grove Museum) came out of the sea to the Carmel Beach and fame last Friday.

In no time at all, the men were clustering about, the press ran headlines, photographers snapped their cameras, and the two-footed ladies (jealous, no doubt) snapped to the alert.

One bitterly determined lady rushed to Don Rich, who had hastened all the way from Pt. Lobos State Park where he is very well thought of expert on marine life. "Don't put that in the water," she cried, "it will drown!" Don looked into the pleading eyes of Bessie Lou, basking in his arms. He shoved the two-footed lady, gently, out of his way and lowered his new love into the Carmel River lagoon. Bessie Lou blinked ecstatically, relaxed on her back and floated into a happy dream.

It was Verne Yadon though, who carried off the damp little creature, her fur coat gleaming and smooth. He took her home to Pacific Grove. He said to his amazed wife, "No baths tonight. My girl friend longs to tarry in our tub."

So Bessie Lou, terribly intrigued by the shower curtain, which she daintily flipped with her tiny "hand," was semi-submerged for the night.

Late supper consisted of slivers of raw fish (even Russians go for that) — and tiny gulps of bath water. "She spit out milk," Mr. Yadon reported. "Whether it was lonesomeness or teething that

How often I've heard some young person complain there's not enough hours in the day to reach all the goals that they hope to attain, and still have a moment for play. The weeks and the months and the years slither by, and scarcely accomplish a thing, while yesterday's dream they discard, with an eye on something tomorrow may bring.

Now scientists state that a man can expect to double his normal life's span with health and the function to still walk erect and do all the things that we plan. But I have my doubts that it's time that we need so much as the will to begin, for it isn't the drive and it isn't the speed that gives us incentive to win.

And it isn't the year or the month or the day, nor all of the time up ahead, but these precious minutes you dawdle away — you could use for profit instead.

The older you grow the more surely you know that time asks no question but how? Forget about yesterday — get up and go! For time isn't future, it's NOW!

FUR FUN — Verne Yadon, curator of the Pacific Grove Museum, gives Bessie Lou the Turkish treatment. She looks pleased.

caused her frantic little cries in the night, my wife couldn't be sure — I'd like to think she missed me!"

Bessie Lou was carried off to San Francisco's Steinhart Aquarium on Saturday. She is, in fact, a "first" of her species, a southern sea otter sub-species, to enter the Steinhart Aquarium where, of course, she has her own private tank.

Should Bessie Lou live to maturity in captivity, she will be a "first lady" all her days. As to whether she'll continue to be cuddly and flirtatious — well, who can tell, about any girl?

Wind IN THE Pines

BY DON MARSHALL

The last trip I took to Mexico was about a year ago. I was working for a large company in Arizona which owned a number of hotels.

At one of the hotels we had a Mexican jazz trio playing in the dining room. The leader, we'll call him Carlos, was excellent and the people loved him, but his visa ran out and he had to return to Mexico.

Now Carlos had been in the states about six months and he really wanted a Jaguar automobile. Not one of those sedate sedans, mind you, but a slinky XKE model, low-slung and powerful.

The complication was that Mexico has a dollar-control restriction on automobiles. The maximum you can spend for one is about $4,000, including duty. Well duty is roughly equivalent to the purchase price, so this makes the car about a $2,000 machine. Since the Jag cost about $6,000, the duty another $6,000, we had a problem.

Carlos and I went to the Mexican Consul in Phoenix and got a whole bunch of affidavits. We had arranged a third party who would be the legal owner, who in turn issued a document giving me the use of the car, then I had a paper loaning the car to Carlos, who agreed to take it out of the country before the expiration of my temporary importation visa.

About this time we went over to the showroom and picked out a wine-colored convertible with crisp white sidewall tires. My but it did look sharp! Finally, when all was arranged, I got into the car and headed for Guadalajara. It being so new, I had to make a conscious effort to hold the car's speed down, at least until we crossed the border and got the first tank of Mexican petrol.

Everything went just fine. The weather was beautiful all the way down. This was probably the only car of its type in Mexico at this time, so every time we stopped for gas we had a large crowd of onlookers to comment when the hood was tipped down to service the engine. Usually the remarks were to the effect that the car was "puro motor."

At last I bid Carlos goodbye outside my hotel in Guadalajara and told him I looked forward to seeing him again in Phoenix the next February.

After a few hours sleep, I got aboard one of those interesting milk-run type flights they have in Mexico. We stopped at Ciudad Obregon in the bright sunlight, then reboarded. When we arrived at Hermosillo, the final stop before Tucson, we were sent through customs. When the inspector finished checking my luggage he began to scrutinize my tourist card.

He inquired as to the whereabouts of the car in which I had entered the country. I told him it was by now in Mexico City, with my friend Carlos. I gave him the affidavit. He was unimpressed. "I yom soddy," he intoned, "jew weel hoff to delay johr veesit." I was taken by car to the customs headquarters with comments about "contrabandistas."

They held me in Hermosillo for 24 hours and an interpreter told me of the gravity of my offense. "More serious than drunk driving, even." They did let me call my office in Arizona, though. Then they took me by bus to Nogales, the district headquarters for the Resguardo Aduanal, or customs guard. By this time my company was exerting as much influence as they possibly could. After all, they were being sought to build a fertilizer plant in a neighboring state.

Well, I was permitted to go to a neighboring hotel for Thanksgiving dinner, as long as I took a guard along and fed him, also. As I recall, I had chicken mole. I took all my meals in this fashion. Likewise, I was allowed to stay in the hotel at night if I took a guard along and rented him a room, too. Later I had to pay the guards $5 a night for depriving them of the companionship of their wives.

They released me when the car was finally impounded in the customs warehouse in Mexico City. I went on to Tucson then by bus and caught a plane for Phoenix.

The following Tuesday I got on a plane in Phoenix and flew back to Mexico City. On Wednesday I got the car unimpounded and then drove it all the way back to Phoenix. Last I saw of it the car was under a canvas covering behind a shopping center that the company owned, presumably awaiting the long-delayed return of Carlos.

Thomas A. Silvear Wins Marine Captaincy

Recently promoted to the rank of Captain in the U.S. Marines, Thomas A. Silvear had his captain's bars pinned on by his commanding officer, Col. Frank R. Stewart, Headquarters and Service Battalion, Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C. He is the assistant depot provost marshal.

Capt. Silvear was born in Carmel Valley, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Silvear. He attended the Bay School, Monterey High School and Monterey Peninsula College. During his first year at M.P.C. Tom enlisted in the Marines and during his 16 months of service saw action in Korea.

He returned to college for a short time before re-enlisting in the Marines where he plans a lifetime career.

CARMEL VALLEY MEMOIRS OF JOE HITCHCOCK

BY MARION CRUSH

Well sir, I've been pretty busy at 6. That saddle was a Christmas present. It was handed down to the younger children and it was worn out. We didn't have as many toys in those days as children have today. But our toys were made of stronger material. I still have one present given to me by my grandmother, Loretta Meadows, and which has lasted all through the years. Some toys were made of cast iron. Tin was not used until later years. The Christmas of 1894 I got a mowing machine with two black horses and a driver—all of cast iron. My brother Ike got a rake with one black horse and my brother Jim was given a fire engine with a little bell. I have all of these in my possession still. My mother always made us put our toys away when we were through playing with them, and thanks to her they are still in good shape. It is funny how far apart Christmases seemed in those days and now they rub elbows with each other.

Much has been written praising horses and cattle in the old west—but alas, poor Fido is seldom mentioned. While the pioneer dogs asked very little, they gave much. We might say they were general hands in the scheme of daily ranch life. They were always pinch-hitting for any requirement they might be called upon to perform. First of all, they had to be watch dogs and that covered a great many different tasks. They killed and tore to pieces any skunks that might be molesting the chickens. They also drove chicken hawks away if they came too near. As a general chore, they had to be cattle dogs as well as deer and quail hunters. Even though their breed was questionable, their loyalty was real. I remember one dog we had, Little Cap, when we were down on the Pescadero Ranch. He was half Spitz and half Shepherd. This dog averaged better than one coon a month, year after year. He would tree Mr. Coon and stay at the base of the tree until morning we could shoot it. Even when he got kicked by a horse and had a broken shoulder (he also was losing his eyesight), he would find his way after the younger dogs to tree a coon or wildcat. The younger Cap would keep his vigil all night. Our pioneer dogs were not pampered. The greatest menace was during squirrel poisoning time. At that time, we kept the dogs tied up, but otherwise they were out on the job like everyone else. Most dogs died of old age as there were very few dog diseases in those days.

I'll speak more about our childhood life in the pioneer days next time. See you then.

Rev. George Hunter Hall
Pastor, Carmel Presbyterian Church

Week-long Celebration at Carmel Presbyterian

Dr. Joseph M. Ewing was guest minister at Carmel Presbyterian Church last Sunday, opening a week long celebration of the church's tenth anniversary. Dr. Ewing, who served as pastor from 1955 to 1962, flew from Philadelphia to speak at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services.

Sunday afternoon a special observance "The First Decade" featured recollections of the early days of the church by both ministers and laymen and was followed by a reception honoring charter members. Participants in the event included the present pastor, Dr. George Hunter Hall, Dr. Ewing, the Rev. Harris Pillsbury of Pacific Grove, the Rev. George L. Markle of Carmel, the Rev. Dr. Ronald T. White of Moraga, Alton Walker, and Dr. Jesse Feiring Williams.

The annual congregational meeting was held last evening. Final event in recognition of the anniversary will be next Sunday morning's worship, when Dr. Hall will preach on the theme "Looking Ahead."

The church was formally organized Jan. 3, 1954 with seventy charter members under the leadership of the late Dr. Harry Clayton Rogers, founding minister. On that date Dr. White preached the sermon. Until the church building at Junipero and Mountain View was dedicated on September 11, 1955, services were held at the Carmel Woman's Club. The next month Dr. Rogers resigned and was named Pastor Emeritus and the Rev. Harris Pillsbury became interim minister.

A short time later the congregation extended a unanimous call to Dr. Ewing who was then pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Santa Barbara. The church continued to grow and the membership doubled during the next six years under the leadership of its new pastor. At the annual meeting early in 1962 Dr. Ewing announced he would leave to accept the position of secretary of the Board of Pensions for the United Presbyterian Church with offices in Philadelphia.

Following Dr. Ewing's departure, the pulpit was filled by guest ministers, the Rev. Harris Pillsbury served as moderator, and the Rev. George Markle assumed the other pastoral responsibilities. In September the membership voted unanimously to call Dr. Hall, who was then serving as executive of the Synod of Arizona. Dr. and Mrs. Hall came to Carmel in November of 1962.

During the past year plans for additional church school rooms and

Carmel Business Assoc. Meets New Directors

New officers and directors of the Carmel Business Association scheduled their first meeting of the new year this morning at 8:00 o'clock at the Pine Inn. Meetings are usually held for breakfast the first Thursday of the month.

Officers are Isabel Tostevin, president; Malcolm Foster, vice-president; Kurt J. Koebig, treasurer; Barbara Kramer, executive secretary. The executive committee consists of Carl Bosholm, Phil Coniglio, Ted Fehring, Malcolm Foster, Beryle Gonzales, Glen Harnish, Kurt J. Koebig, Maynard Petersen, Pete Tersol, Isabel Tostevin, and Howard Brunn, past president.

Tony Vasconcellos, new member of the City Planning Commission, has agreed to be present at all executive committee meetings as representative of the Planning Commission to keep the Association posted on matters before the Commission.

Some time ago, several members of the Association joined together in the name of the Association in order to be able to obtain a group medical plan. The plan chosen is a major accident and sickness plan with Intercoast Life Insurance Company, whose local representative is George H. Macy, P. O. Box 4114, Carmel. Anyone interested in joining such a plan may call Mr. Macy at 624-1060, it was stated.

They Honeymooned In the Snow Country

Following their marriage in the Bride's Chapel of Highlands Inn on Dec. 21, Dr. and Mrs. Robert R. Read (Dagmar Rudd) were feted at a champagne reception in the beautiful home of the George R. Walkers in Carmel.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Rudd of San Francisco. Dr. Reed is an instructor in mathematics at the U. S. Navy Post Graduate School.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Karel Vit, pastor of Carmel's Church in the Round. The bride was attended by Miss Gail Spiegelman of San Francisco, while George Walker acted as best man.

The newly-weds went on a skiing wedding trip. They are residing in Carmel. They joined the George Walkers in Yosemite last weekend and reached their new Carmel home on Sunday night.

Marcia McGinnis One of the Top Ten

Carmel's Marcia McGinnis, the daughter of the Robert B. McGinnis', had more than Christmas to celebrate when she came home from San Jose State College for the holidays.

A college senior, well on her way to a career in advertising illustration and writing, Marcia entered the Mademoiselle (national magazine) College Board competition in the early autumn.

The competition, in fashion design, illustrative art and fashion advertising was open to college girls (seniors), across the nation. It is divided into two terms.

Marcia submitted a series of advertisements (complete) on, of course, Carmel originals, belts, scarves, headbands (for women) by Talbott of Carmel, imported silk or madras affairs, to be found in the Mark Fenwick Shop where, incidentally, Marcia is a star sales "lady" during school vacations.

The contest ruling is that advertisements submitted will not be published; they are for contest purposes only.

In reaching their decision of winners of the first part of the contest, the magazine selected 46 contestants who will go on for the finals.

Marcia McGinnis has been notified that she is one of the 46 finalists; further she is one of the top ten.

Winners in the second half of the contest will be notified at Easter time.

"The prize? One month (June) in New York City as a salaried member of the Mademoiselle staff — much entertainment by advertising agencies and fashion designers and round trip transportation, of course," Marcia told, "but of course, the greatest prize of all, for me, would be the feeling of achievement."

Fun at the Faias Is a Carmel tradition

Arriving on New Year's Eve and here for the weekend, guests of Dr. and Mrs. John Faia, Jr., were Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Jones of San Francisco. Darrell is a Delta Tau Delta Fraternity brother of Jack Faia's and they were classmates at Oregon State. Also in the Faia houseparty were Mike McHeen and his wife, Arleen. Mike, who formerly lived in Carmel will graduate from the University of California Law School in June.

Christian Science Lecture

Here Tues. Eve, Jan. 21

The ways in which a man's thinking determines his life will be explored here at a one-hour public lecture in First Church of Christ, Scientist, Carmel, on Tues. evening, Jan. 21, by William Milford Correll of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

The theme of the lecture is the Christian Science emphasis on yielding to God's power and love through prayer. It is entitled "Your Thinking Determines Your Experience."

Mr. Correll has participated in a number of Christian Science television and radio programs and is an authorized teacher of the religion.

The lecture will be broadcast over radio KIDD.

A NEW BOOK BY A CARMEL AUTHOR

Reformation And The Reformers

BY ERNEST S. CROSBY

A lay author writing for other laymen has approached his subject more as a journalist with an assignment for the general reader than as a historian writing a scholarly text. With great clarity of style and interpretation, his account is easily readable. Included is a very adequate background, sketches of the leading and also secondary characters, followed by a fast-paced narrative and conclusion clearly relating his story to the present life of the Churches.

Judy Ahl weds Lt. Jefferson R. Dennis in glittering ceremony at All Saints Church, Carmel.

Judy Ahl Weds Lt. Jefferson R. Dennis, U.S.N.

One of the most beautiful of the Christmas season weddings in Carmel was at high noon Dec. 28, when Judy Ahl, daughter of Capt. Ben Ahl, USA MC, Ret'd., and Mrs. Ahl of Carmel Valley, became the bride of Lt. Jefferson Rice Dennis, U.S.N., the son of Mrs. Jefferson Dennis of La Jolla, and the late Admiral Jefferson Davis. Officiating at the double-ring ceremony was Rev. David Hill, pastor of All Saints Episcopal Church, where, against a background of holly and white chrysanthemums, the nuptials were performed.

The bride chose white silk peau de soie fashioned with a sabrina neckline, fitted bodice and belled skirt that extended into a chapel train. Her veil of English silk illusion was held in place by a crown of seed pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a cascade of white carnations, stephanotis and ivy.

Her matron of honor, sister of the groom, Mrs. T. A. Marnane of Watertown, Mass., and maid of honor, Miss Marilyn Kudell of Carmel, wore moss green cocktail sheaths topped with tiny jackets. They carried cascade bouquets of crimson roses, leatherfern and antique gold lace ribbon. Their princess caps were created to match the bouquets.

Judy's mother donned a chiffon wool ensemble of pastel blue. Her corsage was of cream colored orchids.

The mother of the groom chose a pastel pink Pesanti silk dressmaker suit with matching accessories and a wrist corsage of white orchids.

Lt. T. A. Marnane, U.S.N., of Watertown, Mass., brother-in-law of the groom, acted as best man.

Ushers were naval officers, Lt. Charles Noll, Lt. Peter Boyne, Capt. E. R. Browne, U.S.M.C., Lt. Robert Topping, Lt. Comdr. Kim of the Korean Navy and John S. Ahl, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony the newly wed couple left under an arch of gleaming swords.

The reception was held in the Bali Room of the U.S. Naval Post-graduate School.

Upon return from their wedding trip, Lt. and Mrs. Dennis will make their home in Carmel.

Carmel Hi Lettermen

Work Week, Jan. 13

Next week, Jan. 13 through Jan. 18, will be Carmel High School's Lettermen's Work Week. The week when Carmel homeowners can have their houses and gardens put in applepie order by Carmel's loftiest (and heftiest) students. All-over cleaning, painting, window washing and weeding are pet ambitions of our teen-age and expert gentlemen, for a mere pittance. For the finest help of a life-time, call Mr. Hadley Hicks, faculty promoter of Work Week, Fr-5-16015 or call Carmel High School, Ma-4-1821.

At the Fred Riders host and hostess's Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rider (Marcia Kuster) at the Riders' champagne supper on New Year's eve, was Mrs. William Rider of Paughkeepsie, New York,

Fred's mother. Mrs. Rider has been Marcia's house guest for the past two months. An addition to the house party will be Mrs. M. C.

Beal, also of Poulsbo, Poulsbo, who will arrive this week-end. She is Fred's aunt.

The New Year's eve party was a gala affair, following the opening performance of Shaw's "Misalliance" at the Circle Theatre of which Fred Rider is managing director.

Guests included the play's cast, plus directors of the Circle Theatre, and many theater personalities of the Peninsula.

The unique decorations, outside as well as inside the Rider home, were dramatic. Lighted candles in oddly contrived paper shades lined the pathway to the house. Tremendous sparkling multi-color mobiles outside the picture windows of the living and dining rooms created an added dimension of enchantment to the midnight scene.

Assisting Marcia at the sumptuous super table was her mother, Mrs. Gabrielle Kuster.

Alice in Fashion LandGuide Dog Benefit Show

"Alice in Fashion Land" will be the theme of the Feb. 4 fashion show and tea to be sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Committee of Guide Dogs for the Blind,

Inc.

The event will highlight the organization's 1964 membership drive and will take place at Del

Monte Lodge beginning at 2:30 p.m.

Mrs. James H. Parks, local committee chairman states that a current membership will serve as admission to the affair. She adds that new memberships are also invited to help meet this area's present goal—the training of two man-dog units. The cost for such training which is defrayed entirely by the Guide Dog organization is $1,850 per unit.

Mrs. Sally Hull Pierce who will serve as fashion show director has announced that members of Patricia Ramsey's "Ballet de Patrie" will carry out the show's theme by dancing short sequences from the "Alice in Wonderland" story to introduce each of the major fashion groupings. Mrs. Rhea Diven ley will write the continuity and act as commentator for the fashion show.

Other members of the local board who will serve as committee heads are: Mrs. Miriam M.

REVIEWED BY HARRY WELLESLEY FLETCHER

Van Der Post's New Book Opens Old Wounds

THE SEED AND THE SOWER, by Laurens Van Der Post, published by William Morrow & Co., New York. On sale at The Bookworm, Dolores near 5th, Carmel.

If you had been a prisoner of war of the Japanese during World War II, and if you had been submitted to torture, starvation and humiliation, you might be somewhat startled by the related experiences and reactions of the protagonists in these three stories.

"A Bar of Shadow," the first episode, takes place in a Japanese prison camp under the command of Hara, a third-class sergeant of the Japanese army. John Lawrence, the principal character among the prisoners, reacts differently to what one might expect, and certainly at variance to what we would have done in similar circumstances.

The second story has as its central character another one of the prisoners in the same camp, one Jacques Celliers, who had an obsession about a brother whom he had wronged. In order to justify his conscience, Celliers conducted himself in such a manner as to bring about his own horrible death at the hands of Sergeant Hara.

An attempt is made throughout the book to reconcile the cruelties perpetuated, the wanton killings by the enraged Japanese with philosophical reasoning based on the historical background of the Japanese.

To this reviewer, it is hard to find a reason or motive for publishing such a document as late as 1963, keeping alive interracial hatreds which should have been buried years ago. Maybe the book is trying to expound a warped version of the "love thine enemy" doctrine, but we doubt if any preacher or minister of the Gospel today would advocate the line of reasoning here.

The third story, "The Sword and the Doll," is nothing more than a one-night stand for a love affair while the Japanese are invading Singapore. It leaves a bad taste in the mouth, for the reader wonders why, if this British officer was so much in love with the "doll," he left her behind while he was aiding others to escape. His later efforts to find her, though futile, prove nothing beyond his own shortcomings.

For the reader who likes moody mind mysteries, this book will prove worthy of study. Beyond that, I draw a blank. H.W.F.

MUSIC

Men ever seek a way of escape,
And music offers a perfect path,
Whether a problem takes the shape
Of illness, grief or another's wrath.
If one is lying on a bed of pain,
Underneath its complete dominion,
The sound of a melodious strain
May lift him up like an angel's pinion.

Trudging along pedestrian soil,
Hemmed by a sweaty, stifling crowd,

If a tide of music should uncoil,

He may be swept to realms of cloud.

Listening to Beethoven, Chopin, Liszt,

Although a beggar at life's door,

He may arise to keep a tryst

With the pure and perfect on a shore

Where the gods themselves will deign to teach

Things too ineffable for speech.

S. F. Float Wins Trophy in Tournament of Roses

San Francisco's float honoring the 250th anniversary of the birth of Father Junipero Serra, founder of the State's 21 Spanish missions, won the Governor's Trophy in the annual New Year's Day Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena.

The float depicted the State in outline with the location of the missions shown. Rev. Noel Moholy, O.F.M., vice-procurator for the Serra Cause which seeks sainthood for the pioneer friar, rode on the float.

The city's exhibit at the 1963 California State Fair also depicted the life of Father Serra. It received the highest judges' rating in the memory of Fair officials, 494 points out of a possible 500.

Fish Tales Tomorrow Night by An Expert

The Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society, meeting tomorrow evening in the Band Room of Carmel High School, will present Julian B. Phillips, marine biologist with the State Department of Fish and Game who will show, by film and narrative, how an investigation is conducted by one concerned with the care and preservation of our marine species. Mr. Phillips is the author of "Rockfish of the Monterey Wholesale Markets," and will answer such perennial questions as "What has happened to our sardines?"

TO WEATHER A STORM
Save themselves a fatal breaking . . .
When one's life looks overcast,
Dark doubts blowing up too fast,
Let him know, storm will not last.
If he bends while gales rush past,
All he suffers then is shaking.

HENRY FAULKNER
San Francisco.

WESTERN WINDOW

Ash green blades of leaves loop two young trees,
frosted with silver filigreed fruit.
Tangerine butterflies fringed in black, flutter and frolic in and out.

a Japanese lantern merriment between the drooping eucalypti.

When stripped to orange bark, naked, peeling their curls of dark fur to expand to new girth
by ardent sun's rays,
the trees await a wind's ways
with freshening embrace, and night's dewed
kiss of grace.

BARBARA O. MOSKOW

BOY IN STARLIGHT

What are you seeking, boy, your young eyes turned
To mirror stars, starlight upon your brow —
Knowledge of the sky from pages learned
In books at school? I see you standing now, Ready for bed, your washed clean, outstretched hand
Shining with tender mystery of light.
Oh watching boy, I know that you will stand
In light of stars on many another night,
But I'll remember always how you stood
Tonight with glint of heaven on your hair —
A child of yearning, knowing quietude
With small lights brightening the velvet air.
This is my wish — that always you may keep
This quiet wonder where you turn to sleep.

GARRISON MAY LINTZ

Palo Alto, California.

HERITAGE

The old year leans his tired arms
On fences in the town,
Holding parcels of ambitions
Slipping down.
Wearing a cost of deeds
That he has finished.
For answers he couldn't find
He dusts closets of his mind.
Leaving a giant gift box
Filled with silver threads of rain
For tomorrow's year to wash and stitch
Earth's verbal wounds of pain.
He leaves a briefcase filled with wishes
And test tube atoms of hope
That the New Year will discover
With the aid of his microscope.

MARY ANN PUTMAN

Seattle, Washington.

TIME

How soon Gray Time approaches,
How soon he scurries by;
How fast he feels his victims,
How fast they multiply.
How keen he keeps his stile
Through all the aeons gone,
And still he works in silence,
And still he marches on!

PAUL PHILLIPS
Seaside, California.

Directed by Kon Ichikawa, "The Burmese Harp" deals with the roads of conscience which drive a private soldier, one of the Japanese forces in Burma during World War II, to bury the dead in expiation for all the sins of war. The harp in the title is significant as a device with which the soldier warns his comrades of ambush. Winner of the 1956 San Giorgio Prize in Venice — for "the film with which best shows man's capacity to live with one another" — "Harp" with its star, Shôji Yasui, has drawn wide critical acclaim, being called "a marvelously poetic creation, a strange and gentle pacifist plea."

Stanley Alan Smith

Honor Scholar at U. C.
The highly selective "Honors at Entrance" award for top scholarship will be presented to 528 freshmen who enrolled this past fall at the University of California, Berkeley.

"The Burmese Harp," a powerful, haunting film about war guilt, will be shown free of admission charge at Monterey Peninsula College Friday evening, January 10. The prize winning Japanese picture will be screened twice in the MFC Music Hall, at 7 and 9 p.m. Fifty individual tickets will be available for each screening after January 6. These must be picked up in person at the college administration building switchboard.

TO A BORED MAN IN A GREY FLANNEL SUIT:

If you're tired of freeways and the pressures of business life in some city or other, and if you've already made enough money in that role to buy the most fabulous spot on the banks of any sea anywhere, we'd like to offer you surf and sunsets to set your tired old heart at ease.

NOTE 1: A rocky bay with a pirate's cove and sea otters and whales, an incredible stand of cypress trees and some of the rarest succulents in the world. Sprinkler system's already in, and also a fine little guest house and garage. Wonderful to live in while you plan YOUR new home. Completely furnished, too. Over an acre and only 5 miles from Carmel. It costs $90,000, but we challenge you to match it anywhere.

NOTE 2: Or how about absolutely the best built house on the Carmel coast, just across the street from the sea, so complete in every detail that you can't name a modern convenience that isn't in the house. It's just a seasoned 3 years old; it's charmingly carpeted and draped, landscaped with care, and we can't find even one item which should be changed. Two beautiful bedrooms, two beautiful baths. The price is $89,500, and we assure you that you won't have to spend a penny in addition. It also is only 5 miles from Carmel.

NOTE 3: If all you really need is a little place to come to for vacations, maybe you prefer a Carmel miniature for $17,950. Your wife will probably call it a doll house — it is very tiny — but it has a nice fireplace for drinking hot buttered rum in front of. There are 2 baths, 1½ bedrooms, and it is completely furnished. And if none of these are what you want, let us know your requirements and we'll find it. We're really INTERESTED in your problems at
